Dear <:Firstname: > ,

Thank you for your commitment to the tenth district and country. This month I want to highlight some of the work we are doing to help protect our children from internet sexual predators, maintain healthy suburban communities and expand Chinese language programs so we can be competitive in a global economy.

The Suburban Agenda

With over half of Americans living in suburban communities today, I formed a caucus of over fifty Congressional to form Suburban Caucus. We have worked for six months to design an agenda for Congress to meet key suburban priorities in education, health care, economic growth and conservation.

Gangs are moving to our suburban communities, thousands of online predators are trying to contact our kids, green and open space is rapidly disappearing from our neighborhoods, and millions of Americans worry that it may be more difficult for their children to enter the middle class than it was for us. Our Agenda for action is picking up support with congressional leaders and many democrats joining this bipartisan effort.

Protecting our Kids From Sexual Predators

Congressman Frank Wolf and I sent a letter to the Federal Trade Commission this month calling for a National Consumer warning for social networking sites such as MySpace.com and Facebook. In the past weeks, there have been several cases of teen age girls being contacted by sexual predators who contacted their victims through MySpace.com. I am pleased that the FTC agreed to began issuing the consumer warnings but there is much more work that needs to be done.

One in five children receives unwanted sexual advances online. Social networking sites like MySpace.com contain web pages for tens of millions of American children. Using the anonymity of the Internet, pedophiles found a virtual hunting ground to prey on children. I welcome the decision by the FTC to issue a national consumer alert, urging parents to monitor who is contacting their children via these sites and warning children to use

Expanding Chinese Language Programs

In late April I introduced the U.S.-China Engagement Act to expand American high school classes teaching Chinese, increases the number of diplomats posted in China, and provide more help to businesses exporting to China.

Over 150 million Chinese students are learning English while less than 30,000 Americans are learning Chinese. While many of our schools have Spanish, French and Russian language programs, few have Chinese language programs. Mayor Daley has made great strides in this area but we need to do more.

I was proud to unveil the legislation at New Trier High School where enrollment in Chinese language classes rose from 32 to 175
